In addition to the two passages cited in note 6, the following passages serve as evidence for the claim that Aquinas held both a and b : a "Now since the Word assumed the human nature into the unity of a person
How plausible is an answer? Nothing in the Bible suggests that Jesus is the name
That is referring to heredity. These four words are used consecutively even though they are repetitive and redundant. What's more, S fares extremely badly when we turn to various kinds of abstract entities. Leo has rightly expounded the faith. The language employed in defining the doctrine of the double nature of Christ implies that our salvation has not yet been obtained. Nobody can escape from this situation, for what we do not know we cannot claim to possess.
