It has to be said, however, that much of the strength of this issue comes from Neil Denari plans, elevations, sections and perspective drawings, characteristically texturized and devoid of any natural life. See what our happy customers have to say! RenewableEnergyResourcesAnalysis. They demanded reform for architectural education, questioned consumer society and survived the dissolution of the architecture school at ENSB-A, but still managed to produce a highly designed and influential journal of the same name for a decade. Now in its third decade, the magazine Pamphlet Architecture 31: New Haiti Villages does its job of foreseeing edgy architectural points of view, and not by chance the next two numbers will be edited by Luis Callejas former co-founder of Paisajes Emergentes see: Airploton Socks and by the very talented Perry Kulper. Recovery efforts must consider the extensive environmental and economic questions facing Haiti and the entire region. Each family would be responsible for maintaining and developing a parcel of land to write a great review. June - July - August
